1. Objective of the Game: What are the objectives of the game?
Play card games to earn money while balancing magic and saving your life. Balancing attributes in life and using of privileges too much is also dangerous.

2. Game Idea : What is your game idea?

In this game, the person has to play a game of blackjack and earn money for this boss. There is specific amount of magic he can use and there is sus-meter to keep it in check. He can use his magic powers in following ways: see next card, change card, use luck, etc. But every power comes with an amount of magic used and sus-value. Cross the sus threshold and you're executed. Balance money, magic and suspicion.

3. Narrative: Please explain below, what is the narrative of your game?
The below narrative should soundly resound with the game idea.

You are a gypsy with magical powers in a world magic is illegal and practitioners of magic are sentenced to death. You have a gambling addiction and thus sometimes use magic to win and play it off as being smart in mathematical probability. One day, somehow a rich heir comes across you and realizes that you have magical powers and that you have an gambling addiction. He decides to use this to his advantage since he has lost all the property his rich father had left him. He approaches you and threatens you to help him out in winning games otherwise he would inform the government about your magical powers and get you executed. Being the Gryffindor you are (Yes, you took the Pottermore quiz), you deny him. But this man has got other plans. “How about I prove that your lover has magic. Huh? Will that get you to do my bidding?” You swallow and begrudgingly agree to him. Now you must use your magic and help him win at the casino. But there is a drawback: Use too much magic and the government gets suspicious and you get exposed as a gypsy and end up dead. Don’t help him earn enough money per round.... Well who knows what the lunatic son of rich man does? Wishing you luck here, you will need it.
